PREFACE

This publication performs two broad functions. As a directory it provides information about the Legislative SIS - its bylaws, officers and current members. As a sourcebook it supplies selected information on the legislative collections of members who participated in a survey that we conducted earlier this year. It also provides a listing of frequently used phone numbers and a detailed tabular description of on-line legislative documents and information.

The survey responses form the bulk of the publication and are arranged alphabetically by each respondent's organization. Each page contains the name and address of one organization, the names and phone numbers of the SIS member and interlibrary loan personnel, loan policies, subject specialties, recently compiled legislative histories, and local area and state holdings. Categories with no response information are not shown. Following the survey section are indices to the listed subject specialties and legislative histories.

We originally solicited only histories of laws enacted after 1989. Because many respondents included recently compiled histories of laws enacted before 1990, we opted to include these as well.

I would like to express my appreciation to members of the SIS's Publications Committee for their diligence on this project and to the large number of SIS members who took the time to respond to our survey. Special thanks go to Annette Erbrecht and her colleagues at Wilkes, Artis, Hedrick & Lane for their splendid work in composing this publication.

This year, all SIS members, regardless of participation, will be sent a free copy of this compilation. I hope that next year's Directory and Sourcebook will occasion still more participation, and become yet more useful by including information on holdings of key legislative documents (Congressional Records, bills, hearings, etc.) and of legislative reference materials.

SOURCES OF ON-LINE LEGISLATIVE INFORMATION
by Richard J. McKinney, Legislative Librarian
U.S. Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System
May, 1992

Increasingly federal and state legislative information has become available on-line with all its attendant speed and searchability. This article briefly describes and sets out in tabular form on-line sources for legislative documents and information.

Commerce Clearing House, Inc. (Chicago, Illinois, 708/940-4600), is the nation's largest looseleaf legal publisher and has been providing legislative information for decades. Its Electronic Legislative Search System (ELSS) provides bill tracking information on both the federal and state levels, but only for the current Congress or state legislative session. ELSS is an hourly-charge and command or optional menu-driven system using various CCH codes, including an elaborate subject coding system.

Congressional Quarterly, Inc. (Washington, D.C., 202/887-6258), is undoubtedly the nation's preeminent publisher of current congressional information. Most of the major CQ publications, as well as other databases, have been placed in its on-line system, WASHINGTON ALERT, including the comprehensive Congressional Quarterly Weekly Report (file WR). It is a menu-driven system with various command features. Clients are charged by the hour, by a set volume of discounted time, or by a set annual fee for unlimited use. The service is also now available through the WESTLAW gateway system.

LEGI-SLATE (Washington, D.C., 202/898-2300), is a subsidiary of the Washington Post, Inc. It was the first commercial legislative on-line service and has been an innovator in placing timely federal legislative information on-line since the 96th Congress (1979). LEGI-SLATE is a menu-driven system with extensive indexing. Charges are by the hour or by annual fees for unlimited use of selected files.

LEGI-TECH, Inc. (Sacramento, California 916/447-1886), is the electronic publishing subsidiary of McClatchy Newspapers. It has a Congressional database, a California State legislative and regulatory database and a New York State legislative database. Coverage is for the current and preceding Congress or state session. Through the TELRAN network consortium it also provides access to current legislative information in thirteen other states. It is a menu-driven system and clients are charged by the hour, by a set volume of prepurchased time, or by a relatively low annual fee for unlimited use in each of its three databases.

Mead Data Central's LEXIS/NEXIS service (Dayton, Ohio, 1-800-543-6862) is probably the largest fulltext on-line service in the world. The LEXIS (primarily legal material) and NEXIS (primarily news material) services are divided into "libraries" with numerous files in each library, many of which are also located in other libraries. Frequently, the files can be accessed in group files within the library as well. Mead's recently established legislative library, LEGIS, has a multitude of federal and state legislative information including many legislative histories. LEXIS/NEXIS is a command-driven service with hourly or transactional charges.

WESTLAW is a subsidiary of the West Publishing Company, the nation's largest legal publisher (St. Paul, Minnesota 1-800/328-9833). Most of West's publications are on-line. In addition to its own files WESTLAW has arranged separate subscription "gateways" to other database vendors. These include DIALOG (1-800/334-2564) which has a number of congressional related database files; and CQ's WASHINGTON ALERT service, mentioned above. You must establish an account with those vendors and use that vendor's command language. STATE NET (Information for Public Affairs, Inc., 916/444-0840) which has federal and state legislative and regulatory information for the current Congress or state session was formerly a gateway but now most of its information is directly accessible from the WESTLAW menu using WESTLAW command language. Many of DIALOG's congressional databases are also directly accessible now. WESTLAW is a command-driven system with hourly charges.

In addition to the above commercial databases which will appear in the following table there are government ones which will not appear because of their more limited availability. One is the U.S. Department of Justice's legal database system called JURIS (202/514-4537, limited to federal staffs). It includes public laws on-line going back until 1973 and a few legislative histories. There is also the Library of Congress' database SCORPIO (limited to Congressional staffs and library patrons) which includes bill tracking information. The LEGIS database in the U.S. House of Representatives is similar to the SCORPIO database. Bill status searches from LEGIS are available to the public for free by calling an on-line specialist at 202/225-1772.

The comparison table that follows is limited in the kinds of information it can convey. At a glance, however, it will reveal what kind of legislative information is or is not available for each commercial vendor and also the name of each database file and the dates of coverage. Footnotes and state information appear only on the final page. Vendor representatives provided input before the table was finalized. These services may differ significantly in comprehensiveness, accuracy, efficiency, cost and timeliness.
